

CAN WE TRUST WIKIPEDIA?

Who has never been on Wikipedia to cheat on homework?

But we don't know if what Wikipedia explains is true. When every page is editable, there are small nasty people who are here to do stupid things like:

- *Add Paul Ryan, an American politician in the list of invertebrates
- Transform a main page and add a Swastika in the background.
- Delete Donald Trump's page and write "Who Really Cares About Him?"

But for several years, the developers worked a lot to set up a history system to prevent people from deleting pages.

The box:

- homework: devoir
- editable: modifiable
- nasty: malin
- invertebrates: invertébré
- Who Really Cares About Him?: Qui ce soucie vraiment de lui?
- background: arrière-plan
- Swastika: croix gammée
- several: plusieurs
- set up: mettre en place
- prevent: prévenir