Presidential election 2022

A new poll confirms the first place of E. Macron in the presidential election.

Based on an Elabe's opinion poll published this Tuesday, Emmanuel Macron, the Centre's presidential candidate, stays ahead of the first round of the presidential election (27,5%) despite a little decrease last week.

As for as Marine Le Pen is concerned, she takes a small advance (20%) on Jean-Luc Mélenchon (15%).

The distance is widening between the two extremes but they always stay in the head's trio in front of Valérie Pécresse, the right wing presidential candidate (10%) and Eric Zemmour, who is one of the extreme right-wing presidential candidate (10%).

The opinion poll also shows that 69% of French electors will be sure of their choice for the first round of the presidential election which will take place on Sunday 10th April.

On the contrary, 31% of them could change their mind before that.

The French majority thinks that Emmanuel Macron will be reelected.
